The process of issuing guarantees to patients

Issuing guarantees to your patients couldn't be easier. It simply involves the following three step process:

1. The assessment of the soundness of a patient's natural teeth involves a clinical examination and the taking of an evidential bite-wing or panoramic X-ray that is scanned with the AI system to produce a detailed clinical report and an evidential record.

2. The rendering of a professional opinion with respect to whether or not the assessed teeth are in a sound state or not.

3. The issuance of a guarantee to all assessed teeth that are determined to be in a sound and healthy state.

Notes:

- I. Problem teeth can be either temporarily or permanently excluded from a guarantee. Teeth that are temporarily excluded are teeth that can be repaired or restored to a sound state, which can be automatically included in a guarantee at no additional cost from the time they are repaired or restored.
- II. Evidential X-rays are taken in accordance with the selection criteria for radiographs published by the Faculty of General Dental Practice (UK) FGDP.
- III. Guarantee assessments can be carried out as part of the standard process for patients undergoing routine or recall check-ups, diagnostic examinations, or after hygiene visits without disrupting the normal workflow process.
